BROWN WAS READY

Regarding the statement morning's Advertiser that Captain Brown of the schooner Herman declined to race the schooner Levi Woodsiry, Captain Brown says that Capt, Harris of the Woodbury asked him what was the best day's record made by the Herman, and he was informed, Captain Harris replied, "Well, then, there is no use of my trying to race you.

WOMAN THAT TOILS.

The first of a series of remarkable articles entitled "The Woman That Toils" begins in the September number of Everybody's Magazine, published by John Wanamaker. Two New York women, Miss Marie Van Vorst (daughter of the late Chancellor Van Vorst) and her sister-in-law, Mrs. John Van Vorst, well known in the social and literary world, determined to find out for themselves how their less fortunate sisters lived. They went without money and obtained employment in different factories in Lynn, Pittsurg. Chicago and Columbia. story of their experience is one of inense human interest and while told oberly and without any trace of sensaonalism, makes an impressive contribution to the general knowledge of social conditions. This narrative makes the most interesting feature any magazine has presented for a long

The first chapter deals with life in he great Pittsburg pickle factories where Miss Van Vorst was engaged. . Alden Peirson has illustrated this article with numerous studies of the factory types found in Pittsburg.
